

ANDREW JOHNSON.
On our second page we publish a full and complete biography of Andrew Johnson, which has been compiled with great care, so that nothing should be omitted necessary to the elucidation of the character of the man who has invited and challenged the opposition of the people of Tennessee by his selfish and unscrupulous conduct. This biography has been prepared with a view to the answering of all and any questions that might be asked, or that may occur to the reader of the APPEAL. It is for the most part, borrowed from his speeches and official documents, and will be found the most entertaining and interesting reading the masses have yet developed. In publishing it we must not be understood as endorsing a policy the opposite of that which we endorse in the exposure of the cause of Horace Greeley for President. We believe in covering the ground with facts; we believe in letting bygones be bygones, standing on the bloody chasm, filled with the bones of our fallen heroes, and forgetting all cause of difference, of contest and animosity, pledging ourselves honestly for the union of the States. The APPEAL embraced the cause of reconciliation with the ardent and earnest character of the man it represents, and was steadily protected that the dead past should address itself to a future that opens brightly, that promises a season of sorrow and repentance and calm for every wound. But the assassin to the party which has given him this best of years to Tennessee. He has invited, sought and courted a response; he has compelled an answer in kind and forced from us what we have hoped would have, like all other things of its sort, lay in the tomb where he himself lies. He has left us no choice in the best way we could, as best we could. It is unanswerable, and if it do not bring every voter in the State to the aid of Cushman, it must be because they are unworthy of him and deserve to be represented by the murderer of Mrs. Sumner.
